Still am confused why, when we were working on the bridge press release for a week (with Katz and Persily) and the delegation's staff was told, why Lisa and Ted publicly claimed they were surprised.

I had called Don personally a couple of months ago to ask if any more fed $ was coming for the bridge - he said no - I said it just couldn't be a high priority for the state - he said "don't even think about giving that $ back", I assured him we wouldn't, we'd spend it wisely on infrastructure.

I met with Stevens a couple of days ago. He did most of the talking, we agreed to disagree on what to expect with AGIA (he thinks it's too late to get our gas to market), it was cordial - but he sure seems grumpy and pessimistic.

Pls rely my respect towards them. I think the media blows out of proportion a "frosty" Stevens relationship... but come to think of it neither he nor Lisa have much reason to be big fans considering my relationship with Lisa's dad and Ted's son.

Governor,

In case you have not heard, the General Government Unit (GGU) which is the State's largest employee union voted to ratify the state's contract. Assuming the Legislature approves the monetary terms, the employees will be covered under a three year contract. This is good news. We still have fiscal year 2008 issues to resolve with the supervisors' union and IBU of the marine highway system as well as fiscal year 2009 issues to resolve with all the marine highway unions.

MESSAGE:

Dear Governor Palin,

I recently found out that William Carey has been nominated for a judgeship in Sitka. I am writing in support of his appointment. Let me relate a couple of personal stories that cause me to believe he would be a wise choice.

I have been a friend of Bill's wife, Kathleen for several years. Kathleen and I have a mutual love/hatred of politics and talk at length about everything political. Bill, for the most part, just ignores us. I think this says something about the man. He has never, at least in my presence, taken a side or position. I'm sure he must have an opinion but he keeps it to himself.

Bill and I are of Irish descent. I am a militant Irish Nationalist. As such, I constantly try to elicit a response or reaction from those with whom I discuss Irish politics. I would suspect he is an Irish Nationalist, but whatever his opinion, he keeps it to himself.

I believe Bill to be thoughtful, deliberate, and very conservative. Qualities, I believe, that make Bill Carey an excellent choice for a judgeship.

Thank you for considering my opinion. If you have any other questions about Mr. Carey that I can answer, please feel free to call...907-274-6397

Best Regards,

Subject: RE: Barb Sched

Tomorrow at 3:00 pm, I have scheduled a meeting with Barbara and other Dept. of Education staff to go over the education task force recommendations. I have a number of questions regarding the costs of the different components and whether the implementation timelines are appropriate. Would you like to attend via phone? Alternatively, I can scope out the details with the department and then schedule a meeting with you and the agency to go over options and recommendations very soon (maybe while your in Juneau).

I had a conversation with Barbara and staff from the University yesterday about a program at St. Johns University. They bring kids in the summer and do a part sports camp and part academic program. The local school districts, university and the private sector are all involved with making this program a success. One advantage is that between the school districts and the university, all the infrastructure and even staff is available in the summer. We discussed yesterday at how we could model something similar to really target our high drop out rate. In addition to the high school drop out rate, many kids are entering the university system unprepared and requiring remediation.

I asked the university staff and department staff to work together and develop a plan that would be (1) just a pilot in Fairbanks (2) program in Anchorage and Fairbanks, and (3) Anchorage, Fairbanks, and an outreach effort to rural Alaska. They believe they could put a proposal together prior to our budget deadline and run it by you. Not that we need more ways to spend money but we do not different way to spend money to get better results. Not sure what you think but I am interested to hear back from our education folks on what they can come up with.

DOT has submitted their list of road projects and we have met with the Department of Revenue regarding bonding and other financing options. Karen and her staff at OMB have been working on the prioritized lists of projects from the agencies. We would like to go over the information with you and then we will need to make a decision about the level of general fund spending on all capital projects including infrastructure. We can analyze the regional balance of the priorities and need for additional authorization beyond the general fund spending. A bond package or a draft bill will be easy to develop from that point.

Subject:

The Renewable Resource Coalition is now running a new add which is on page B-3 of today's Anchorage Daily News. The message is the Governor should question Commissioner Irwin about the Pebble Mine and restore transparency and integrity to the process by reversing the bad decisions of the Murkowski Administration by moving habitat back to Fish and Game.

Some comments:

The Governor has already asked that the commissioners of Fish & Game and DNR to review habitat and give her our recommendations. That is in progress. Denby appointed Ken Taylor and I appointed Dick Lefebvre to review habitat on a factual basis, what worked well and what didn't when habitat was at F&G and what the status of habitat at DNR is now. To-date no one has been able to show where Habitat has made a bad decision while at DNR. Ken and Dick have been interviewing all habitat employees and are actually in Fairbanks today talking with habitat employees. Ken and Dick were asked to have their review complete by the end of November so Denby and I could prepare a recommendation in December for the Governor.

As far as the permitting process, we have completed the permitting presentation which we will start showing around the state. We are planning on showing a short version at the Chamber on October 22. We are very prepared to address the pebble mine and permitting issues and hit this head on. Again we would be pleased to show the presentation to anyone in the Administration at any time.

Remember the Governor and I have consistently said we will not allow Bristol Bay to be put at risk. We also support the permitting process. We can not randomly, on emotions, start saying a project is good or bad.

Nay-sayers are confusing the issue of making a process more efficient as opposed to making it easier by having less protection for the environment. DNR has no overriding authority except as lead agency to coordinate and facilitate. DEC still decides water quality issues. F&G still decides fish issues. EPA and the COE still manage their processes.

The Alaska Conservation Alliance, representing over 40 environmental groups, is having their annual meetings this week in Anchorage. Yesterday Ken Taylor, Dick Lefebvre, Kerry Howard and I meet with them for a little over three hours. We discussed several issues including habitat, permitting, and Pebble. The discussions were very open and constructive. Commissioners Lloyd and Hartig also independently met with this group.

I know no one wanted a good process to end but I think in an effort to provide more information in a way we could see the big picture, Kris and Janice developed a two calendar system, one of confirmed items and one of pending requests. The problem of today's schedule is due to Janice being out yesterday (Her husband's grandmother passed away and they needed to go help the family). Whether it is a list or calendar format, I want to make sure it is easy for you to read and then we probably just need to commit time to work through the requests.

I don't think that you need to take it over. We have a detailed database of all phone and written requests that can be printed in a number of formats. Those are entered here in Juneau by Janice. There are other requests that come in to Anchorage but if they are all forwarded to a central location, we should have a record of the request.

I think the problem is that the requests stay pending for far too long. We seem to be lucky to confirm events two weeks out or less. Janice flew up this morning and she and Kris are planning on going over the pending requests with you. If we can find a structured process to get advance approval on the requests, we can hand the events off to a special assistant or communications to pull everything together including the talking points. I don't know if that is me, Kris and Janice or Kris, Janice and Todd or you, Kris, Janice and Todd. Scheduling is always going to be difficult (last minute requests do come in and reshuffling needs to occur on occasion) but we had one occurrence where I thought things were handled as good as they ever had. Kris, Janice, maybe Todd and I met and discussed about two weeks worth of requests. We developed a list of recommended schedule accepts and recommended regrets. During a cabinet meeting, you and I discussed the proposals. For the large part, the recommendations were approved with just a couple of minor changes. My impression is that you were pleased with the process.

Ideally, it would be nice to plan time every week to go over schedule requests. If it was something that Janice and Kris could do, it would make a big difference. My preference would be to glance over the long lists and provide any comments to Janice or Kris but if it takes an hour or longer to work through the items, I would do whatever it takes to get the job done.

Another item that I think would be helpful is to make sure that we have a staff person attend every public event you attend. Beth came back from NY with a stack of business cards and is working on thank you notes. I would like to see someone with you during work events that can keep track of comments, questions, requests that come in and be responsible for forwarding them to the appropriate staff person for response. The staff person with you would also then be responsible for communicating with Janice to make sure all work activities are reflected on the calendar.

I mentioned splitting up the press and communications functions and hiring two additional people to fill Meg's job. Another communications staff person could help in a sense be an event planner. They could be responsible for making contact with requestors and scoping out a lot more detail such as will they have a seat, where is the seat, who will be at the table, is there an exit close by, etc.

Anyway, I hope this was helpful and I look forward to discussing it more with you.

Does it make sense to take over my own scheduling? I dont want to offend anyone, but the things we've missed in scheduling have been sometimes pretty embarrassing. Please don't forward this.

The only solution I can come up with is to take on more of the scheduling responsibility- and it sounds like others are happy to have me do it.

Unless there's anyone else on staff who'd be very efficient and detailed-oriented, then I think I'd better start researching the events and appts myself beforehand so we are better prepared... and also have more complete official records of daily activities.

Can you think of any other solution beside me taking it on?

I haven't heard back from Lynne on it.

And any other scheduled events- I know there are plenty today- nothing's on the calander again and it make for an inefficient use of time to try to remember these events/appts without having them recorded on the sched. I know it's been a frustrating process to get the scheduling to run smoother- I think if I can just start plugging into the official calander things that have to be there, then we'll save time and I can get on with other things. I'm happy to do it myself bc it's still not working efficiently and I spend quite a bit of time chasing down event details.

I think the problem is that the requests stay pending for far too long. We seem to be lucky to confirm events two weeks out or less. Janice flew up this morning and she and Kris are planning on going over the pending requests with you. If we can find a structured process to get advance approval on the requests, we can hand the events off to a special assistant or communications to pull everything together including the talking points. I don't know if that is me, Kris and Janice or Kris, Janice and Todd or you, Kris, Janice and Todd. Scheduling is always going to be difficult (last minute requests do come in and reshuffling needs to occur on occasion) but we had one occurrence where I thought things were handled as good as they ever had. Kris, Janice, maybe Todd and I met and discussed about two weeks worth of requests. We developed a list of recommended schedule accepts and recommended regrets. During a cabinet meeting, you and I discussed the proposals. For the large part, the recommendations were approved with just a couple of minor changes. My impression is that you were pleased with the process.

Ideally, it would be nice to plan time every week to go over schedule requests. If it was something that Janice and Kris could do, it would make a big difference. My preference would be to glance over the long lists and provide any comments to Janice or Kris but if it takes an hour or longer to work through the items, I would do whatever it takes to get the job done.

Another item that I think would be helpful is to make sure that we have a staff person attend every public event you attend. Beth came back from NY with a stack of business cards and is working on thank you notes. I would like to see someone with you during work events that can keep track of comments, questions, requests that come in and be responsible for forwarding them to the appropriate staff person for response. The staff person with you would also then be responsible for communicating with Janice to make sure all work activities are reflected on the calendar.

I mentioned splitting up the press and communications functions and hiring two additional people to fill Meg's job. Another communications staff person could help in a sense be an event planner. They could be responsible for making contact with requestors and scoping out a lot more detail such as will they have a seat, where is the seat, who will be at the table, is there an exit close by, etc.

Anyway, I hope this was helpful and I look forward to discussing it more with you.

Mike

Does it make sense to take over my own scheduling? I dont want to offend anyone, but the things we've missed in scheduling have been sometimes pretty embarrassing. Please don't forward this.

The only solution I can come up with is to take on more of the scheduling responsibility- and it sounds like others are happy to have me do it.

Unless there's anyone else on staff who'd be very efficient and detailed-oriented, then I think I'd better start researching the events and appts myself beforehand so we are better prepared... and also have more complete official records of daily activities.

Can you think of any other solution beside me taking it on?

Mike- could u track down where the principals speech is this morning?

I haven't heard back from Lynne on it.

And any other scheduled events- I know there are plenty today- nothing's on the calander again and it make for an inefficient use of time to try to remember these events/appts without having them recorded on the sched. I know it's been a frustrating process to get the scheduling to run smoother- I think if I can just start plugging into the official calander things that have to be there, then we'll save time and I can get on with other things. I'm happy to do it myself bc it's still not working efficiently and I spend quite a bit of time chasing down event details.

Also, any idea what time this sched mtg was to take place today? I did not see or hear about it so have filled up the (evidently) empty hrs with catch up work i have to do. It's another reason i have to be kept in the loop on what folks are exxpecting of my time.

I don't think that you need to take it over. We have a detailed database of all phone and written requests that can be printed in a number of formats. Those are entered here in Juneau by Janice. There are other requests that come in to Anchorage but if they are all forwarded to a central location, we should have a record of the request.

She didn't mention your hint but you gave her a pretty big one! I can let you know if I hear back from her. If you really need the help and are interested, I think it would take a one on one where she can get to know you a bit more. She says she spent a lot of time trying to convince Jim Clark/Governor M not to do something, he'd do it, and then she'd have to explain it. You would be a whole different boss to her with much different sensitivities and she needs the time with you to see what the interaction would be like--as would you.

She got a big eyeful of our positive working relationship (you and me)--a gov/lg relationship which she said was highly antagonistic in the last administration. She heard my staff talk about the supportive role we take undergirding your office, and she seems drawn by similar values.

One other thing I noticed--I think she would be aggressive about creating and controlling press/communications opportunities and fully capable of fielding questions and making things happen for you. She was used to getting her marching orders and going to accomplish it. Meaning, that she's competent, takes direction, and goes and does the job without requiring a lot of handholding to get it done.

Hope your ACES meeting went well!

And any other scheduled events- I know there are plenty today- nothing's on the calander again and it make for an inefficient use of time to try to remember these events/appts without having them recorded on the sched. I know it's been a frustrating process to get the scheduling to run smoother- I think if I can just start plugging into the official calander things that have to be there, then we'll save time and I can get on with other things. I'm happy to do it myself bc it's still not working efficiently and I spend quite a bit of time chasing down event details.

Who do I work with to get access to "input" on the calander? I hate to keep bugging others about my sched. I'm happy to do the inputting myself so nothing falls between the cracks... Just need to know how I get access to allow me to start inputting these events and appts for the official record.

You speak at 10:00 am at the Sheraton. Harris is at 11:30 and McBride at 1:30. These latter meetings came up yesterday afternoon when Janice was out so we'll get them added today. She'll be here this morning.
